"Be Just and Fear Not."

While the world standeth, justice will stand—ultimately but surely. True, injustice may triumph for the day; but its day is snort. Time is a great rectifier of mistakes, and avenger of wrong, and bad as the human heart is, it must and does respect uprightness. And above all and over all, reigns an Infinitely Great One, and He will see to it that all shall yet have their due, and that right shall surely triumph.

Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again, The eternal years of God are her's; But error, wounded, writhes in pain, And dies, annalst her worshippers.

With these convictions ought every one to attempt every duty, and dare every consequence of doing it. Such convictions make strong men-men who never fear another just such a creature as themselves and boldly do and dare for the right. Too many are anxious to know what is politic or expedient, rather than what is, in and of itself, just. How few ask first of all-Is it right? Plated Spoons and Forks,

Justice that you pay your tailor. You may study politeness of manner, but it should never degenerate into servility or fawning obsequiousness. Some men are bold to kick a chicken thief, but are bold to kick a chicken thief, but timid before the unmasked scoundrels who steal by law their millions. The need of to-day is therefore the recognition and enforcement of equal and exact justice to all men, and of justice in all men. No other virtue, even, can take its place. Generosity has its place. But no one should be generous until first just. Many a man has donated to Charity what he has stolen from the unprotected or defenseless. And, too many "crook the pregnant hinges of the knee," to the successful sharper, or Sping of State of the successful sharper, or smooth-faced, canting hypocrite, who might be rough in manner to the poor fool, who only knows enough to be much face. SUGAR CURED HAMS roar of Popular Affimation? When will the world learn to be "Just and fear not?" And will the Pulpit and Press place this great Virtue, in the fore ground as the great need of these degenerate times? Time when drivelling eant passes for piety, and donations to Sunday Schools, excuses the delinquencies of many a one who "steals the livery of the court of heaven to serve

The Impossibility of Chance. Charles J. Sprague, Esq., in the Attantic Monthly for September, has a very readable article upon "The Impossibility of Chance." He remarks that "Few words, as commonly used, are so entirely false and misapplied as the word "chance." Sorrow and joy, health By using the PAPHIAN LOTIAN, the latest and sickness, success and failure, life and most wonderful of all the cosmeties. By its use all moths and freekles are removed, the skin the most important events of life, are becomes clean and transparent, and the cheek familiarly referred to chance. Let us take a simple instance, and fol-of a mason, as I walk along the street.

Here is certainly what may be called a chance occurrence. But what a multi-As full a stock of pure Drugs as can be found in the State of Vermont, together with Resinoids, Fluid Extracts, and all articles required in a Physicians or domestic practice. Warranted pure and of first opalic. which made him trembling and uncertain-and here I might follow up the causes which led him to commit excess, such as example, suffering, disappointments; and the causes which led the builder to undertake the erection of that house. I might go far back and trace the causes which led men to build brick houses. I was there at that unfamilliar spot, at that time, because I was seeking a dector for my child, who had slipped on an orange-peel and had broken his arm. Here is another series of secondary causes. The cause of his fall was the importation of a certain orange from Sleily. It was imported because oranges are edible, and he slipped because orange peel is soft and yielding. I might go further than this, and trace the causes of ship-building, and thence to the cause of the turning of the magnetic needle to the north. Certainly the falling of the brick results from the force of gravity, the use of bricks in house-building, the use of the compass in sailing vessels All these causes, which might be indefi-nitely extended, combine to make a di-rect series, without which the event could never have occurred. I was not there by chance, the mason was not there, the brick was not there, the orange-peel was not there, by chance, Their existence and influence, extending to the results of my death, were due to a wonderfully complex and far-reaching action of natural laws."

> Secretary Seward, in accordance with an informal vote of Congress, has entered into negotiations with Mr. Thornton, the English Minister, for a new Reciprocity Treaty with Canada. It will be based on the old treaty, and will soon be transmitted to the British and Canadian authorities, and will be ready for Congress to ratify in December,
